Fall enrollment drop recorded

Total enrollment for Fall Quarter dropped two percent below last year's figure from 12,366 to 12,137.

Jerald Holly, director of admissions and records, said late registration would probably bring the final figure up to last year's total. "We are trying to keep it approximately the same as last year," he said.

Most of the college's schools showed a slight decline in enrollments.

The School of Engineering and Technology had the largest drop of 6.9 percent. Agriculture and Environmental Design followed with a drop of 4.4 percent, and then Science and Mathematics with 3.5 percent.

The School of Communicative Arts and Humanities increased 7.1 percent and Human Development and Education grew by 1.4 percent.

One of the fastest growing majors is Child Development which increased 21 percent. Women's Physical Education is up 16.8 percent.

POLITICALLY BALANCED

State checks speakers

An action by the California State College Board of Trustees may limit the freedom of students in choosing speakers to speak when the use of student funds is involved.

The trustees voted last Wednesday to maintain a one-year surveillance over guest speakers who are invited to campuses by student groups and whose fees are paid from student funds.

The proposal was met with only minor trustee opposition and the board ordered all state college presidents to submit quarterly to trustees a list of such speakers who have appeared on their campuses.

The California State College Student President's Association (CSCSPA) protested the move and some indicated they will refuse to volunteer such information to their college presidents, who presumably would then have to compile the list from student government records.

Trustee W.O. Weissick said the one-year limit was placed on the action to give trustees time to "decide whether the system is working satisfactorily or whether we should take another look at it."

He said the surveillance would be abandoned "if it appears there is no problem."

Weissick said the trustees were "not in any manner...telling the students who to have as speakers."

Speakers charging less than $100 do not have to be included in the lists which must include the name of each speaker, his topic, a brief biographical sketch and the total amount of fees and expenses paid to him.

SAC to review summer action

The Student Affairs Council (SAC) will use the year's first meeting this afternoon to review the summer and to get to know each other, according to Marianne Doshi, ASI Vice President.

The meeting, usually held in the evening, will start at 3 p.m. in the Student Council Chambers, CU 230.

The new school year may bring some excitement to this campus as well as to all the state colleges throughout the state.

According to Art Bierman, President of the United Professors of California, the UPC Council recommended to the State faculty that they should "collectively face, responsibly discuss and vote on a strike before March 1, 1978."

"If Governor Reagan does not ask for a 15 percent increase in State College wages in his January, 1978 Budget message, we will recommend that they vote in favor of a strike."

"California professors have been treated more shabbily than any other occupational group in California in the past two years. We have not received cost-of-living increases for two years. In our last meeting with Governor Reagan he refused to promise us that he would ask for a raise for professors next year," he said.

"President Nixon's freeze of our merit salary coming on top of Governor Reagan's veto of the legislature's 10 cost-of-living increase has returned faculty to campus this Fall angry, frustrated, bitter and open to new solutions to their problems," he explained.

The UPC Executive Board and Council has met in emergency sessions for 14 hours trying to come up with a solution for the faculty as a result of the strike recommendation.

Economic talks begin

Representatives of 118 nations began a series of meetings in Washington Monday that have been described as potentially the most significant since Bretton Woods.

In London, Soviet officials under expulsion orders for spying missed the first two flights for Moscow, but the Foreign Office said the ouster order would not be rescinded.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Registration progress?

Editor:

I would like to have it known that on Sept. 22 while standing in the line waiting to pay the registration fees I had much time to consider the whole process of change in the procedure of registration that has been bestowed upon us. At the time I amused several of my fellow travelers with the notion that if field commanders had to wait in such a line for their military orders we would have years yet to wait before the Hundred Years War could get off the ground.

If this latest outrage is an example of Cal Poly's motto of "learn by doing" and is considered progress, perhaps many new students will have second thoughts as to which direction on the evolutionary continuum of education Cal Poly is plodding.

I am to be considered available for comment as to my views on what can be done with the new method of registration as well as being available to participate on a committee to investigate the committee who enacted such a scheme in the first place.

In other action Wednesday the trustees were informed of the appointment of Donald E. Walker as acting president of San Diego State College and approved new admissions regulations for community college students who transfer to state colleges as juniors.

Starting in 1974, such students must have a full 60 units of credit that can be counted toward graduation before transferring.

Our radical administration

Students and faculty who branded Pete Evans a radical when he was elected Associated Students Inc. president last spring were correct in their opinions. Evans is indeed a radical president.

Our image of radical, however, differs somewhat from what has become the accepted picture of radicalism. Contrary to burnings, riots and the like, we see Evans as a more down-to-earth, responsible person whose greatest claim to radicalism is his attempt to climb from beneath a skin-tight budget a lame-duck Student Affairs Council approved for the 1971-72 year.

While we cannot agree with all of Evan's and vice-president Marianne Doshi's ideas and plans, we welcome the efforts of that administration to perform directly for the students.

Indeed, the inactivity and insignificance of student government itself was a key issue in the spring elections and apparently Evans and Doshi are intent upon proving that students can work together to achieve a purpose.

That purpose as seen by observers, appears to be a combination of ideas from anyone who wishes to contribute in an outward attempt at change—that which this school often appears adamantly resistant to. Evan's words during the elections and his subsequent election acts as a prophecy of things to come: "Choose a leadership that understands the changes that are coming...that is dedicated to those changes."

Key among Evans and Mrs. Doshi's proposals are a legal aid service, a student-run housing office and a children's day care center. Of the three, the housing center seems to bear the most merit in regard to the student majority.

All three proposals are revolutionary as far as this campus is concerned. Yet on other campuses at least two of the three are becoming commonplace. We expect to see more of these "revolutionary" proposals as the year continues.

We must express one word of caution as the student leaders seek increased control. When Evans was campaigning, he spoke of misappropriations of ASI funds and the control of student government by a small clique of students with resultant suppression of progressive programs. He also spoke of programs railroaded through without the consent of the students.

Evans must be careful not to fall into the same pitfalls. He must be sure his programs will benefit most or all students and not just a select few. He must be careful not to change the power structure of student government in such a way as to make his office a virtual dictatorship. He, too, must remember he is representing over 12,000 students and that he was chosen by them, his peers.

The student president and vice-president appear committed to their responsibilities. They are not just playing at student government. While we cannot endorse their entire program and all their proposals, we do salute their efforts on behalf of the students.

gliding down the hills of Poly Canyon may not seem to be the best way to be introduced to this campus, but it sure worked for about 350 new students at the Poly Canyon Festival last Friday. In all the group numbered over 400 for the Week of Welcome activity planned to introduce new people to the lively creativity possible here.

Rocking music from "San Andreas Fault" unified the festivities that included fun like volleyball, kite flying, Frisbee flying, pillow fights and rope climbing. The serious side of creative play was in the form of mediation, a paint-in, folksinging and poetry reading.

The major entertainment for the six hour festival was craftsmanship of "The Committee Workshop." They gave two demonstrations of their work in the canyon, showing their variety of communication of ideas by vocalization and pantomime.

Music also rose sporadically from the crowd as a few individual guitarists let their souls go. Scotty Jackson made a particularly memorable performance, according Richard Jenkins from the activities office who also made this comment about the success of the first Poly Canyon Festival, "There were around four hundred people up there and everybody stayed."

Organization to stress rights

Rights of the people under the new changes in state welfare regulations is the focus of a meeting of the San Luis Obispo Welfare Rights Organization Wednesday. The meeting is being held in the Grassroots Center at 341-A Higuera Street at 7:30 pm.

Martin Kresse, a representative of California Rural Legal Assistance will be at the meeting to talk about how those currently receiving supplements can get more effective help from Welfare. He will also give advice on what to do if Welfare seems unfair to recipients or those applying for aid.

...and with a little help from our friends

Rich Wyatt found it easier to sit than slide as he, Ann Wakefield, and Diane John strung the lights out to form the "C," "P," and "V."

Strictly non-partisan, Larry DaShiell took care of the technical end. He volunteered to help, though not a member of Rally Club or Mustang Daily.

Poly "P" stays lit-tradition kept

Mustang Daily initiative Saturday—with a little help from our friends—helped preserve a sparkling college tradition.

When Rally Club special events chairman, Bob Dowrick, discovered over 500 feet of conductor cable missing last week, a tradition of lighting the Poly "P" on football game nights was apparently doomed before the 1971 home season began.

However, Kathy Beasley, Mustang Daily reporter and photo editor, and Phil Bromund, head photographer, caught wind of the problem Saturday morning and resolved they would see the "P" lit for the University of Montana game that night.

The two schemers contacted Paul Simon, Mustang Daily editor-in-chief, who convinced Syl Culwell, district manager for PGandE, to lend the cable necessary to complete the huge circuit on the hill overlooking the campus.

Culwell had been planning a trip but postponed it long enough to come to the aid of the stricken cement letter.

Meanwhile, Simon had enlisted the aid of Larry DaShiell, an Industrial Technology major, who discovered partial remains of the former cable halfway up the hill while inspecting the electrical setup.

With 750 feet of triple conductor wire obtained at the PGandE warehouse in San Luis Obispo (the distance to the "P" actually was much greater than 800 feet) DaShiell went to work wiring the hillside.

At about that time Dowrick learned his club did not have the many yellow lights necessary to light the "P" and he purchased them in the city. With a handful of club volunteers he arranged the lights while DaShiell completed the circuit.

Shortly after 5 p.m. the lights blinked on for the first time.

Later that night those who glanced up at the hillside saw the familiar college letters—"C" and "P"—flashing regularly, little realizing the tremendous, last-minute groundwork that saved an ancient tradition from going up in smoke.

Steve Smolen got stuck with the tricky job of untangling the yards and yards of lightbulb wiring. Sixty-four yellow light bulbs require quite a bit of cord!

Special Events Chairman Bob Dowrick put it all together from Rally Club's end.

One hundred men lose pants

Baton Rouge, La. (UPI)—Two armed robbers stole the pants off about 100 men at the annual Catholic High School men's supper Sunday.

The robbers, wielding a shotgun and a rifle, walked into the school shortly after midnight and ordered every man in the place to drop his pants. They fled with the men's money and their pants.

Only 12 of the victims were willing to file complaints with police. Others went home before the officers arrived, and still others were too ashamed to become involved by filing complaints. The 12 who filed complaints said they were robbed of a total of $5,952.

Mansfield again seeks withdrawal amendment

by JOHN HALL

Washington (UPI)—Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield reintroduced today an amendment to set a six-month time-table for total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

A Mansfield amendment, approved 61 to 38 by the Senate last June but diluted by the House, called for withdrawal and release of American prisoners of war in nine months.

The new Mansfield amendment would seek to declare the "policy of the United States" of total withdrawal from Vietnam. The only condition would be for North Vietnam to release and account for all Americans who are prisoners and are missing in action MIA.

"To the POWs and MIAs, this amendment offers not an expressed intention or a helicopter in the sky but a sober assurance of action on their release and recovery," he said.

"...Indeed, it must be faced in all candor that the prospects are dim for the return of any of these men unless and until we decide that for this nation the war in Vietnam is completely over and act accordingly."

CONGRESS SWEATS

Nader bombs pollution

by MIKE FEINSILBER

Washington (UPI)—Arguing that the government inevitably supports industry's interests, Ralph Nader asked Congress Monday to give citizens the right to sue public officials for failing to enforce antipollution laws.

The consumer advocate asked a Senate Commerce subcommittee to strengthen a controversial and far-reaching bill to give the public a powerful new toll to combat pollution—the right to go to court against polluters when the government fails to act.

But the bill came under attack from a spokesman for industry, who said if it were enacted the federal courts would override all other branches of government and wind up writing the nation's basic pollution laws without considering how much the public is willing to sacrifice to curb pollution.

"The American people need a good environment but they need other things as well, and so conflicting considerations must be weighed and choices must be made," said William F. Kennedy, associate general counsel for the General Electric Co. and a member of a committee which advises the government's Council on Environmental Quality.

The bill would make it far easier for citizens and groups to file such lawsuits.

Eco Action

Ecology Action will kick-off this year's events with a meeting tonight in the CU. Interested people are urged to visit the Union at 7:30 and listen for ecology music to find the meeting location. A slide show will be shown, according to Warner Chabot, one of the three chairmen heading up this year's organization.

Coalition favors pullout

Immediate total withdrawal from Vietnam is the main goal of the San Luis Obispo Peace Coalition recently formed to tackle the continuing issue of peace in our time.

"We've been trying to turn-on all elements here, but it's been difficult," said Penny Cooter a coordinator for the group.

Mrs. Cooter is a veteran of the Isla Vista Peace Faire and Town Meeting during the third Isla Vista disruption. She said the Peace Coalition is composed of clergy, students, businessmen, labor, veterans, Mothers for Peace, college instructors and "dedicated individuals".

Mrs. Cooter said she got together with Pete Evans, ASI Presl.; Navnit and Marianne Doshi, ASI Vice Presl.; and Peter Knutson, Vets for Peace, and formed the coalition.

"We got various people to the meeting (about 50) at the same time we found out the Methodist Church (United Methodist church) was very receptive to our meeting there," Mrs. Cooter said.

"We formed a steering committee and anyone is welcome to be on it as long as they work very hard. At any rate, our main goal is to get out of Viet Nam, totally out.

"As far as we are concerned our goal is to get out now! Not three months from now. Total withdrawal is very important."

December 31, 1971 has been set as a national deadline for total troop withdrawals.

The coalition's first public activity was a leaflet campaign during the recent visit of the Navy destroyer USSR Parks.

"Quite a few of the men aboard this people destroyer were very receptive to what we were there for," Mrs. Cooter said.

Mrs. Cooter said the group is on the San Luis Obispo City Council's agenda for Oct. 18. The members will present a resolution "hopefully to get a unanimous vote against the war."

"We are committed to this and encourage anyone to come to the next meeting which is Thursday Sept. 30 at 8 p.m." The place is the United Methodist Church at 1818 Fredricks St., lower level south entrance.

Council seeks new chairman

The Business and Social Science Council will hold its first meeting today at 11 a.m. in CU 216, when a new Council Chairman will be elected.

A look into the formation of the new year's objectives and goals will also take place. All council members and students in Social Science, Political Science, Business and Economics are invited.

The election is necessary since the present Council Chairman Sterling Grogan is resigning. According to Grogan, he is giving up the office in order to spend more time as campus Peace Corps representative.

Grizzlies slash host Mustangs

The Mustangs dropped their second game in as many outings Saturday night when the University of Grizzlies ran 411 yards to a 38-14 victory.

The Grizzlies exhibited their patented rushing offense before 7,500 fans in Mustang Stadium, as halfback Steve Caputo and fullback Buddy Walsh combined their efforts for more than 300 of the 411 Grizzlies' rushing yards.

The Mustangs trailed only 14-7 at the half, but they failed to score in the third period while Montana had their biggest quarter, scoring two touchdowns to put the game out of reach, 28 to 7.

In the first quarter, Montana's Caputo, a six-foot, 205-pound sophomore, capped a 51-yard drive, scoring from the two yard line run with 5:21 remaining. Midway in the second period, Caputo added another six points on a 76-yard breakaway to paydirt on a handoff from quarterback Gary Verding.

The Mustangs' lone score of the first half came late in the second quarter when senior quarterback Steve Bresnahan ran for one yard, completing a 74-yard drive in 11 plays. Mike Guerra added the extra point.

Midway through the third quarter, Walsh, another sophomore, took a handoff from Berding and went seven yards for the third Grizzly score of the night.

Late in the third quarter, Mick Dennehy picked off a Bresnahan pass and raced 20 yards into the endzone to all but crush Joe Harper's hopes.

Montana completed its scoring with a touchdown by Berding on a 13-yard run and a field goal by Bob Turnquist from 37 yards out in the fourth quarter. Turnquist was also successful in all of his five extra-point attempts for the Grizzlies.

Matt Cavanaugh made the final Mustang score with 1:36 remaining in the game on a two-yard run. Guerra again added the extra point to finalize the score.

The Mustangs look for their first win of the season next Saturday night when they meet Humboldt State of Arcata.

Instructor visits paper mills, studies industrial developments

James H. Babb, instructor in the Graphic Communications Department, combined business with pleasure this summer by visiting paper mills as far south as Pomona and as far north as British Columbia.

Babb said the trip to the various mills was made to make a study of new developments in paper-making including the conservation of natural resources, the effects environmentalist groups and new laws are having on the individual mills, and to update information taught in his paper-making class.

One of the mills Babb visited—in Powell River, British Columbia—produces more newsprint than any other mill in North America.

In Everett, Washington, Babb visited the Simpson Lee Mill—the oldest paper mill in Western North America.

Perhaps the most unusual mill Babb visited was the Garden State Paper Company in Pomona. Babb said the mill is a 100 per cent newsprint recycling mill—one of three in the United States.

The mill has a patent on a secret de-inking process and uses no virgin cotton or wood fibre. It recycles about 280 tons of used newsprint per day.
